Sheltie Connection

President's Message....

Tricia Harris

This is my last President's message. I just wanted to take this opportunity to thank everyone that has been so supportive during the time that I have been president of this club. It has been a very interesting experience. I have learned a lot from this experience. I think our club has made great strides in the last two years. We have all learned a lot as we have put on two very successful specialties. We have enjoyed each other's company and made new friends along the way as other sheltie enthusiasts have joined with us. It feels very good to see our numbers grow.

I hope that you will give all of your support to Jim next year. I believe that changes are always good. I'm sure that Jim will bring many fun new ideas to the club. Please be willing to help him in any way that you can. I wish him the best year ever next year.

Again, thank you all for all of your help and support.

Pickering Award

All too often, it's all the little things that make the most significant impact on an organization, club or business. If the little things are ignored or go unnoticed they seem to multiply and quickly get out of control. If all the little things are kept in good check, it seems to make everything run a little easier. It seems to lighten the burden of the much larger projects and ease the resolve of the most pressing issues. Since joining the club last spring, it was not hard to notice the efforts of so many -for the good of all. Throughout the year, there has been a member with a great attention to detail that becomes an invaluable service to the club. She's kept a close eye on the little things that many of us would have left unnoticed. She dedicated her time and talents to help raise funds with the help of an additional raffle at the specialty. She is friendly, kind and welcoming. She is a constant reminder to us all that if we all work together to benefit the club, only then does the club become a benefit to us all. At this time, for all the little reasons, I'd like to nominate Peggy Newman for the 2007 Pickering Award.

Tony Plott

I would like to nominate Tony Plott for the Pickering Award. Even before Tony became a member of the club he showed us how willing he was to help by sponsoring trophies. I have never seen a "new" member of a club be so willing and eager to help in any situation. Whenever there is a volunteer needed, Tony is there to help. In the short time he has been a member of our club he has volunteered his services for the 2007 Specialty as he chaired the Raffle, while being extremely ill, made beautiful reusable posters, and donated the custom frame for the special Sheltie picture. He has helped with the inventory the trailer, offered to chair the obedience for the 2008 Specialty, and agreed to be voted upon as a board member. This doesn't even touch the fact that he is always ready to help set up and take down equipment when needed. Tony has never turned down anything that has been asked of him. As a new member of the club, Tony has shown us what being a valuable member of a club he is by his willingness to help in any situation. Therefore, I would love to nominate Tony Plott for the Pickering Award.

Respectfully,
Barbara Soderborg

I would like to nominate Cindy Wilkinson for the Pickering award for her many years of hard work in the agility part of our shows. And her made a first time champion winners owner feel like it was a very big deal to get your dog finished. She went out of her way and made a big banner with pictures she had taken and everyone signed it. That's what good hearted dog lovers do.

Tomi Hamblin

"Dearest Club Members,

Over the years of our club, there are many people who I feel have contributed to the betterment of our club's ongoing activities and well being. My nomination for the Pickering award this year hopefully reflects the job well done this year and was, in my opinion, over and above what would have been expected in the capacity he was asked to serve.

Please accept my nomination for Jim Newman for a superb and outstanding job as Show Secretary. His was an extraordinary job done and the beautiful catalog for our specialty set a new standard and was really something we could all be proud of.

Thank You,
Julene Matthews

I would like to nominate Trica Harris for the Pickering Award for 2007. I feel that she has been a great asset to the club by serving as its President for two years and had led us with great integrity and a willingness to listen to and accept all input as regards the club. I feel that she has worked quietly and diligently and has been one of the primary reasons that this club has continued intact. She has also served as the editor of the Newsletter for past several years and has done a great job which required much time and effort. And when the time was right, she found someone to do the job and handed off the reins and the newsletter has continued. She has attended all of the Board and General Meetings and has been available in her capacity as President to lead and direct our discussions and decisions. She has stepped up and been willing to lead and teach some of our meetings about our breed. Unbeknowns to some she has been the recipient of some hate mail to which she did not respond in kind but maintained a calm and sweet demeanor. She has allowed the club to be directed by the club members and has worked hard to make every member feel welcome at all of our meetings. She has maintained firm control of the meetings and has not let them descend into angry, hurtful exchanges of feelings. She was present at our specialty and worked hard to make it a success. She has been an invaluable asset to our club and deserves to be recognized for her generous service.

*Aerowind's Against All Odds,

April 17, 1992 - Sept. 1, 2007

Peggy Newman

Gambler became the house dog and my companion. Especially after Crystal passed on, he missed her and became a bit more clingy then. Corgis were ok, but he really missed Crystal.

One of his favorite times was a few years ago when Alan and I when we took the corgi puppies outside to play. He found that he rather enjoyed wrestling and running with corgi puppies. And they thought he was a great friend. Even in his last days, when he was outside and I was getting them in or out they would have to stop and give him kisses accompanied with bunny butt wiggles before they could move on to where I wanted them to go. My "money" litter will miss their long legged friend.

This past year, I'd take him out, I had begun to carry him up and down stairs as his legs were becoming less and less reliable. He would follow me, as I'd take dogs to the runs. On good days he'd try to run a bit even though it was a rather stiff legged gait.

This past summer has been a rough one for Gambler and I. He was gradually losing his ability to walk and even to stand. He would whine and I had a hard time knowing what he wanted. Even after giving him food, water and taking him out he'd sometimes whine. I would get very frustrated with him and I hope so much that he will forgive me for that. I know it was hard on him too, to not be able to do what he wanted.

When it came down to us having to hold the water for him so he could drink, and the last week even having to help support him so he could stand when he needed to potty I knew the time was near. Then he started to drink more and eat less. All summer he'd been eating 2-3 cups of kibble thorough out the day and a can of food at dinner time. He stopped eating the kibble and took some time to finish dinner. I knew he was telling us it was time to let him go.

Be free Gambler and may you run, run, run as you love to do. I thank you for teaching me about lure coursing and the beauty of a running dog. I love you and I will miss you.

Helpful Hints: Healthy Weight for Dogs

Helpful Hints: Healthy Weight for Dogs

Don't be fooled by the myth that if you want your dog to be big and strong, you must feed it lots of food. Each breed has different nutritional requirements. If you're not certain how much food is appropriate to feed your dog, check with a breeder or veterinarian. Table scraps alone are unhealthy for your dog and can lead to an unbalanced diet. If you think your dog needs to lose a few pounds, slowly cut down its caloric intake. "Crash diets" will only lead to nutritional deficiencies and are very unhealthy.

If you think your dog is not receiving enough vitamins and nutrients, consider adding a vitamin or mineral supplement to its diet and consult your veterinarian. Contrary to popular belief, dogs do not need variety in their diet. Use the same type of food every day, and if you need/want to change your brand of dog food, do so with the advice of your veterinarian.

Bad breath is a common problem with dogs. It can be created from food, tartar deposits on teeth, or from digestive problems. Feed your dog dry food and tartar-fighting treats to help reduce plaque. Brush your dog's teeth once or twice a week with a toothbrush and dog toothpaste; you can also use a moistened gauze pad. (Note: Never use human toothpaste.)

General Nutrition

Just like humans, it is unhealthy for a dog to be overweight. Excess weight endangers the heart, lungs and joints and makes a dog more susceptible to other ailments. An irregular eating schedule can affect your dog's digestive system and ultimately cause chronic digestive disorders. Digestive problems can usually be improved by a change in diet.

If your dog's feeding schedule is suddenly changed, don't be surprised if it still craves a meal at its old feeding time. Your dog is conditioned to expect a meal at a specific time, so biologically its internal alarm clock still produces a hunger drive. In addition, dogs don't easily adjust to a time zone change or to daylight savings time. To prepare your dog for a time change, gradually adjust its eating schedule over a few weeks. Don't worry about your dog getting hunger pangs between meals. Your dog only needs one or two meals daily if it is fed on a regimented schedule and receives a balanced diet.

It is important that your dog's water and food bowls are kept in the same place every day. If you have more than one dog, make sure each dog has its own food and water bowl. Dog food should not be left out longer than 30 minutes. If your dog has walked away from its bowl, it has probably had enough to eat. Discard any remaining food, since exposed dog food becomes unsanitary.

Starting an Exercise Routine

Exercise can improve your dog's physical and mental health, but it is important to research the best exercise routine for you and your dog. Consider your dog's age, health condition and current activity level. Check with your veterinarian before beginning anything vigorous. Make certain to keep your dog on a leash at all times when you are exercising in public. You don't want your dog to get distracted by cars, people, or other dogs. Letting your dog out in your backyard doesn't qualify as exercise; however, a good game of fetch may do the trick.

When exercising your dog, try to keep it on a grassy or earth surface. A hot sidewalk or sharp gravel surface is hard on paws. If your dog begins to pant too rapidly, STOP exercising. Dogs can't speak to tell you when they have had enough. Dogs can also suffer from heat stroke, so you need to make sure your dog is not overexerting itself. Pay special attention to your dog's footpads and toenails. If there are any abrasions or cuts, stop exercising until they have completely healed.

Helpful Hints: Healthy Weight for Dogs continued

Activity Programs

When starting your dog on any exercise program, begin slowly to build its endurance level; too vigorous a workout may cause injury. Walking or jogging on the beach can be a great form of exercise. But, keep in mind that it is very strenuous and your dog can tire easily. Start your dog with short walks each day to get it accustomed to the sand.

If you would like to start jogging with your dog, begin with short distances. Forcing your dog to keep up with your jogging pace may cause it to run at an unnatural gait. A pace other than what is natural for your dog (slower or faster) can cause cramps and muscle spasms.

Exercise is still important during the winter months when bad weather doesn't always permit outdoor activities. If it is too cold outside to exercise your dog, develop fun-filled indoor activities that are suitable for the size of the dog and the amount of space you have available.

Swimming is another good type of exercise, but don't let your dog overdo it. It will be using new muscles and may tire quickly. Remember: Never leave your dog unattended in the water. You should always be in a position to help your dog out of the water because even a strong swimmer can drown if exhausted.

When preparing a diet and exercise plan for your dog, keep in mind three key stages of development:

- Puppies eat more and are highly active.
- Adult dogs have normal routines and food intake.
Older dogs might require special diets and limited exercise.

And, most of all, when evaluating an appropriate diet and fitness plan for your dog, a veterinarian should always be consulted.

This year the Holiday Party will be Saturday, December 29th
beginning at 5:00 p.m.
Location will be in the same building we meet at
for our monthly meetings

This year we are asking all those who attend to bring a homemade dish to share with others. The meat and drinks will be provided. A sign-up list will be sent around for you to choose what you would like to bring at club meetings and also through email.

We are very excited to present a new theme to the holiday party by keeping with the "giving season" in helping Sheltie Rescue. We will have an angel tree at the October and November meetings where you can pick an item(s) to be donated to Sheltie Rescue the day of the party. Rather than spending an amount of money to buy a gift to trade, we will buy a gift for those dogs that are less fortunate than our own. For those who cannot make it to the meetings to pick up an angel but would like to donate, please contact Barbara Soderborg at 561-4616 for items that are needed.

We as the committee are very excited for the party this year as it will be filled with lots of fun, excellent food, and time spent with friends.

I Have A Question

What do you think about breeding Sables to Merles' or Blacks'?

OK..... I would not breed a sable to a blue, my luck I would end up with blue eyes in every pup
I would breed a pure sable to a bi black if it had everything I wanted to improve my breeding program :O)
I would breed to a tri.....
Barbara Vann

I have no issue with breeding sables to blue as long as you are prepared to place all pet sable merles on spay/neuter contracts.
Sometimes the way a dog crossfaults lies better in a color that you would not normally consider.
A sable merle bitch can be a real asset to a breeder in that she can produce all colors. My best producer has been a sable merle. She has given me bibblacks, blues and sables all excellent quality.
The special I am showing right now,, Ch. Denian's Deuces are Wild, is the result of a sable to blue breeding and he is exquisite.
So done right with careful consideration, breeding sables to blues can really work for a person.
Shannalee Waller-Michalsky

This is a very interesting question. I think it has probably been debated as long as there have been shelties. I really feel like one could make a very good argument for both sides of this debate. I love to see a beautiful Pure for Sable sheltie. I have two of them at my house and enjoy the fact that they have pure for sable pedigrees. On the other hand, I have bred Sable to AOAC with very good results. I feel like the two colors have a lot to offer each other. I would breed two dogs of any color together if I felt like they cross faulted well and I might get the improvement that I am looking for. I have never done a blue to sable breeding, but would do so if I felt like it was the best dog for the bitch I am breeding. I am in favor of keeping some lines pure, but am not against breeding colors together to achieve the attributes I am looking for.
Tricia Harris

RECIPE OF THE MONTH:

Garlic Chicken Chewies

ingredients

- 1 cup whole wheat flour
- 1 cup regular flour
- 1 cup white cornmeal
- 3 tbsp olive oil
- 3 eggs (beaten)
- 1/2 cup juice from boiling chicken giblets
- 4-5 fresh garlic cloves
- 1 pound chicken giblets and hearts (or chicken liver)

directions

Place olive oil, fresh eggs, chicken stock, fresh peeled garlic cloves, and boiled chicken gizzards in the blender. Blend until well mix, a little chunky not quite smooth. Then mix in the flours and cornmeal. Place on greased cookie sheets. Bake 20 minutes in a 450 degree oven. Store in the fridge or freeze if you will not use in over four days. They even like them straight out the freezer! The garlic is good for their heart and is a natural flea deterrent. The olive oil and eggs are good for a healthy coat. My dogs love these treats! Email me and let me know what yours think!

"Why is Chocolate Lethal to Dogs?"

Chocolate contains theobromine. A naturally occurring stimulant found in the cocoa bean, theobromine increases urination and affects the central nervous system as well as heart muscle. While amounts vary by type of chocolate, it's the theobromine that is poisonous to dogs. Symptoms of Chocolate Dog Ingestion and Poisoning

You can recognize that your dog has eaten a toxic dose of chocolate from the symptoms. Within the first few hours, the evidence includes vomiting, diarrhea or hyperactivity. As time passes and there's increased absorption of the toxic substance, you'll see an increase in the dog's heart rate, which can cause arrhythmia, restlessness, hyperactivity, muscle twitching, increased urination or excessive panting.

This can lead to hyperthermia, muscle tremors, seizures, coma and even death.

How Much Chocolate Is Deadly?

If a 50-pound dog eats a teaspoonful of milk chocolate, it's not going to cause serious problems. However, if that same dog gorges himself on a two-layer chocolate cake, his stomach will feel more than upset and soon it's likely he'll be vomiting or experiencing diarrhea.

To answer the question "How much is too much" is not simple. The health and age of your dog must be considered. Obviously if your dog is aged and not in top shape, his reaction to a plate of chocolate is going to be different from a young healthy dog of the same weight.

Another fact that must be considered is this: Not all chocolate is the same. Some has a small amount of theobromine; another type has a large amount and still another contains an amount that is somewhere in between. The quantity has a relationship with the weight of your dog. Small dogs can be poisoned, it is easy to understand, from smaller amounts of theobromine than large dogs.

Which chocolate is the safest, relatively speaking? White chocolate. It has the least amount of theobromine: 1 mg per ounce. Far on the other side of the spectrum is baking chocolate, which has a huge 450 mg of theobromine per ounce!

Here are a few other chocolates for you to ponder: hot chocolate, 12 mg of theobromine per ounce; milk chocolate, 60 mg/oz; and up there near baking chocolate: semi-sweet chocolate with 260 mg/oz.

You might try using this to remember these chocolates from least to most toxic: What Happy Moose Says BAA? Or: White-Hot-Milk-Semi-Baked. If you have a better way to remember, contact us!

Knowing which chocolate is the most toxic is important, but leaves one wondering how much must be eaten to poison a dog. The list in this box should be helpful. Maybe you can clip it and post it on your refrigerator?

White chocolate: 200 ounces per pound of body weight. It takes 250 pounds of white chocolate to cause signs of poisoning in a 20-pound dog, 125 pounds for a 10-pound dog.

Milk chocolate: 1 ounce per pound of body weight. Approximately one pound of milk chocolate is poisonous to a 20-pound dog; one-half pound for a 10-pound dog. The average chocolate bar contains 2 to 3 ounces of milk chocolate. It would take 2-3 candy bars to poison a 10 pound dog. Semi-sweet chocolate has a similar toxic level.

Sweet cocoa: 0.3 ounces per pound of body weight. One-third of a pound of sweet cocoa is toxic to a 20-pound dog; 1/6 pound for a 10-pound dog.

Baking chocolate: 0.1 ounce per pound body weight. Two one-ounce squares of bakers' chocolate is toxic to a 20-pound dog; one ounce for a 10-pound dog."

" Theobromine is similar to caffeine. Theobromine is toxic to a dog when it ingests between 100 and 150 milligrams per kilogram of body weight." <http://www.howstuffworks.com/question348.htm>
